

Software Engineering

Assignment 1

- Q1 What is the most important difference between generic software product development and custom software development? What might this mean in practice for users of generic software products?
- Q2 Explain why the fundamental software engineering principles of process, dependability, requirements management, and reuse are relevant to all types of software system.